DID YOU KNOW?

The reason most injectable fillers are FDA-approved for the nasolabial folds (and why use in other areas is typically off-label) is because it is easiest to measure improvement of the folds in terms of empirical evidence and numbers.

FAR INTO THE FUTURE

These injectables are currently being used in Canada, Europe and beyond, but have yet to enter FDA trials.

>> Bio-Alcamid

WHAT IT IS A permanent filler

WHY IT'S DIFFERENT Bio-Alcamid has a consistency similar to surrounding tissue, which minimizes the chance that the filler can be seen or felt beneath the skin. Although the polymer will last indefinitely, its cohesive nature allows it to be extracted without surgery if necessary. Long-term side effects and risks are not yet known.

STATUS Used in more than 20 countries since 2000; not yet in U.S. FDA trials

>> DermaLive and DermaDeep

WHAT IT IS A permanent filler

WHY THEY'RE DIFFERENT Used mostly in Europe, the particles in DermaLive and DermaDeep are suspended in a hyaluronic acid base. Two to three treatments can enhance cheekbones, fill deep nasolabial folds and scars, and even augment the chin, and is said to last several years.

STATUS Not yet in U.S. FDA trials
